DESCRIPTION

Spirea is a popular landscape shrub that has a dense, mounded form and blooms profusely. Flowers are produced in flat clusters, covering the plant in early summer. Spirea will grow in various soils, except very wet, and should be sited in full sun.

Dakota Goldcharm® has small leaves that emerge with a bronzy tone in spring then turn bright yellow. Foliage may take on chartreuse tones during the heat of summer. Light pink flowers.

Spirea is easy to grow and responds well to pruning, often displaying more flowers if trimmed after initial bloom. It is an excellent shrub for foundation plantings, massing, low hedges, or shrub borders.
