DESCRIPTION

Large, spreading tree known for its interesting bark and form. Phellodendron generally are low branched with a horizontal form in youth, developing a broad-spreading crown with maturity. They are adaptable to various soil conditions and are quite urban tolerant.

'Eye Stopper'™ has a more upright form when young, but eventually will display a spreading, rounded crown. It boasts the brightest yellow fall color of all Cork Trees. Mature trees will show its characteristic corky bark.

Phellodendron is best utilized as a shade tree for parks and other large, open areas.
