DESCRIPTION

Weigela has long been valued for their profuse display of brightly colored flowers in late spring. They are extremely adaptable to soil type and grow best in full sun.

'Minuet' is a compact form, with dark green foliage tinged with purple, and showy clusters of ruby-red flowers.

The small stature of this cultivar makes it well suited for edging the front of borders or planting in containers. They look nice massed, and with a little pruning to tidy the plant after flowering, could be incorporated into foundation plantings.
